Base-wide barbecue Sunday

By Bruce Peever
 Shilo Stag

Get your fill of hamburgers or hot dogs at a community-wide barbecue this Sunday, July 25.

In what is hoped to be a regular monthly event, organizers want to see both individuals and families out for a mid-day party.

Chaplain Lt (N) Kelly Boyden is the driving force behind the community barbecue and he invites one and all.

"People can bring salad or desserts and we will provide the hamburgers, hot dogs and all the fixings, as well as the coffee and drinks for the kids," Padre Boyden explains.

The event, which starts at 11:30 a.m. and runs to approximately 1 p.m., will be held in the Faith Centre (T-119).

"There will be lots to do for the kids including colouring books, markers and crayons. For the grown ups, we usually have music or a sporting event on the big screen," Padre Boyden says.

While it is not the first such community barbecue at the Faith Centre, this Sunday's event will be the first one that will be widely known. Padre Boyden hopes the monthly get-togethers will help utilize the under-utilized centre.

"Everyone knows about the chapels, but not many use the Faith Centre. I would like to see more movies or sports events on our big screen," Padre Boyden says.

With the theatre at GSH shut down at least for the summer, the padre would like to offer something for those younger soldiers who don't have weekend transportation off the base.

"I would be willing to show movies here on Friday nights if that would help," the padre informs.

Anyone wanting to lend a hand can contact the Faith Centre at local 3091.

Large crowds were on hand July 16 and 17 for the annual Sprucewoods/Shilo Rodeo held just north of the base on Hwy. 340. At left, CF personnel in the background are part of the opening ceremonies on opening day. At top, a cowboy holds on for dear life in the bucking bronco competition. See page 6 for more rodeo coverage.

Use discretion on social networking sites

By Sara Cumming
Shilo Stag

Do you update your Facebook status every hour, or Tweet what you had for breakfast? If so, be careful what you say - your boss could be reading, and there are quite a few rules you could be breaking.

As the popularity of social networking websites increases, so do the issues associated with the sites, such as Facebook and Twitter. Shilo managers, both military and civilian, have voiced concerns about the consequences of employees posting job-related messages and photos on their Facebook pages.

Silvia Ukleja, Human Resources Manager for Shilo Non-Public Funds (NPF) employees, says that although Facebook hasn't become "too much of a problem in Shilo yet," she has started to hear stories from other HR managers in the area - like the story about the girl who called in sick to work, and then posted pictures of herself partying in Mexico.

"There's a liability issue," Ukleja explains. "It breaches the trust between an organization and the employee. Normally people should use their own good judgment and not post anything that they wouldn't say to their boss directly, because it can come out. Even if it's a protected profile, that (information) can still be shared through other contacts."

"Social media has become an issue in many workplaces," states Wendy Lundy, a union rep with United Food and Commercial Workers Local 832, which represents Shilo's NPF employees. "The concern is that what you write on Facebook may come back to haunt you."

Lundy says the union advises that employees not talk about coworkers, supervisors, customers, clients, or their place of work in any negative way.

"The best policy is to not write about or post photos from your workplace that might cause you problems at work," Lundy says. "There may be (disciplinary action) up to and including termination."

Offending your coworkers isn't the only thing at risk when one posts on Facebook; military members who post information, timings, and photos about operations on a social networking site could be posing a security risk.

CPO2 Ted Lee, WO in charge of police operations and one of the security specialists at Shilo's Military Police unit, educates military members each year on how to avoid letting sensitive information slip through the cracks.

"We try and educate (military members) in regards to what's out there," CPO2 Lee explains. "Little bits of information all add up to one big piece of information."

For example, Lee says, someone looking for information could go to a military member's Facebook page, identify which unit they're with, and then go through the member's contacts and find more information from friends who are with the same unit.

"We can very easily jeopardize plans and operations ahead of time," CPO2 Lee states. "Obviously it's not a very good thing when someone knows your operational plans before you go into an operation."

Be careful about what you post on Facebook — your boss may be reading!

"Security within the military is everybody's responsibility," he continues. "Everybody has a security clearance, and they've signed an agreement saying they will not disclose sensitive or classified information. They're advised all the time not to disclose this sort of stuff. There could be repercussions if this information gets out, especially purposefully."

Ukleja, Lundy and Lee all agree on one main point: once information is put on the internet, it's out there and there's no taking it back.

"(Facebook is) a great tool, but it shouldn't be abused and you should be cautious about your behavior," Ukleja says. "Use it for networking purposes, and use it in a positive manner. Whatever you put out there, you have to be prepared that it can come back to you."

Letter to the Editor

Coffee sales near $10 million for Camp Day

Dear Editor

Thank you for your support of Tim Hortons Camp Day, when more than 3,500 Tim Hortons stores in Canada and the United States donated their entire coffee sales, in addition to funds raised through other Camp Day events and activities, to the Tim Horton Children's Foundation.

This special day raised an unbelievable $9.7 million CDN! We are extremely grateful for the support and generosity of our customers, store owners, staff, special guests and media who participated in Camp Day 2010.

Funds raised on Camp Day this year will help more than 14,000 deserving children to one of six Tim Horton Children's Foundation camps — all expenses paid. Each camp offers a wide range of first-class programs and activities that encourage campers to embrace and overcome challenges. The experience is designed to build self-confidence, self-esteem, leadership skills and provide campers with a positive view of their true potential.

On behalf of Tim Hortons, the Tim Horton Children's Foundation and the thousands of children you have helped send to camp this year, thank you very much.

Sincerely,
Bill Moir
Chief Brand and Marketing Officer
Tim Horton Children's Foundation

JULY 15 – IT'S THE LAW.

On the road?
Put down your phone.

Kids in the car?
Put out your cigarette.

Changes to the Highway Traffic Act ban texting and talking on hand-held cell phones while driving. Studies show that 80% of all crashes are related to driver distraction and the number one source of driver distraction is texting and talking on cell phones.

Prohibited Activities

- Talking, texting or e-mailing using a hand-held cell phone or smartphone
- Any other cell phone or smartphone functions unless they are being used "hands-free" by voice commands or one touch

In case of emergency, prohibited devices may still be used to call fire, police or ambulance services.

Changes to the Highway Traffic Act also ban smoking tobacco in cars when children under 16 are present.

Studies show the same toxic chemicals found in your car's exhaust such as formaldehyde, benzene and carbon monoxide are found in tobacco smoke. By smoking in your car when children are present, you are increasing their risk of developing serious respiratory illnesses.

Find out more

The new laws include fines for drivers who do not follow the cell phone and smoking bans. For complete details about this – and all of the changes to the Highway Traffic Act – please visit manitoba.ca

Stop and smell the lilies in escape to Neepawa

By Bruce Peever
Shilo Stag

If you appreciate bright flowers and lots of them, there is only one place for you this weekend.

Neepawa is the Lily Capital of the World and plays host to the 14th annual Neepawa and Area Lily Festival on Friday, July 23 through until Sunday, July 25. Some 10,000 visitors are expected to converge on this town for this festival which has the theme of 'Welcome the Nations.'

Street entertainment, horse and bus tours, a tangled thread quilt show, food events and much more will thrill your senses over these three days. Among the events showcased are a Miss Lily Fest contest, classic car and tractor show and shine, a talent show and the Lily Duster 5 and 10 K Run. See www.lilyfestival.com for a full list of festival activities.

These three volunteers give their green thumbs a good workout at one of several flower boxes located throughout Neepawa. It's all in preparation for this weekend's 14th annual Lily Festival.

If you go...

Neepawa is about 70 kilometres northeast of Shilo or 90 kms northeast of Brandon. To get there from Shilo take Hwy. 1 east to Carberry, then head north on Hwy 5 to Hwy. 16. From Brandon head north on Hwy. 10 then east on Hwy. 16.

For more info, visit www.town.neepawa.mb.ca lilyfestival.com for a full list of festival activities.

Festival Administrator Audrey Heffell notes the annual event is good for town coffers.

"We were looking at financial records from one ATM. The weekend before the festival one year there was $16,000 withdrawn. The weekend after there was $27,000. The weekend of the festival it was $50,000. That was from one ATM. There was a lot of money spent here and it is bound to have a good effect on our businesses," Heffell outlines.

The festival is so popular that hotels and Bed and Breakfasts in Neepawa were booked solid one month ago.

"This is a significant event," outlines Neepawa's Chief Administrative Officer Allison Bardsley. "Our campground is booked and you can't get a hotel room anywhere close over the festival period."

Neepawa itself gets spruced up for the big weekend. Hundreds of volunteers have been weeding and pruning area flower beds in the weeks leading up to this weekend's festival.

"Community pride is really strong in Neepawa from the spring until fall. When you look at all these beds, there is just one employed gardener and a few town staff. The rest of the work has been done by volunteers," Bardsley states.

There is however more to Neepawa than thousands of lilies. It is also the birthplace and final resting place of renowned Canadian author Margaret Laurence. Her Manawaka series of books, including The Stone Angel and The Diviners, are thought to have been set in Neepawa. Her grandfather's house, where Laurence lived for more than eight years, is now a Provincial Heritage Site and museum.

Nearby is the Riverside Cemetery, with a stone angel and cross monument that served as a cover photo for Laurence's book. The cemetery itself is a tourist attraction and not just because of the stone monument.

"We have a perpetual care program at our cemetery in which every grave is planted with petunias. In season it really does look like a beautiful field of petunias," Bardsley informs.

Other sites to see include the Beautiful Plains Museum, a converted CNR station that is now home to a general store, along with a medical hall, log cabin, Ukrainian Village, chapel and more.

Craving more culture? The Viscount Cultural Centre for the Arts displays local, Manitoban and Canadian pieces of art along with pottery, fused and stained glass, photographs and gift cards. There is also a gift shop on site. Meanwhile, down the road is the Roxy Theatre, formerly the Neepawa Opera House and now a municipal heritage site serving as a stage for local drama.

For those wanting to connect with nature there is the Riverbend Park campground. At the south end of town is Park Lake with picnic tables and footbridge. There you can also check out the Neepawa Bird Sanctuary featuring mandarin ducks, pheasants, peacocks and other birds. Throughout town is a series of fitness, recreational and architectural walking trails and tours.

If hitting the links is more your thing, the Neepawa Golf and Country Club is considered one of Manitoba's finest offering an 18 hole championship layout.
